Number of Employees-

In the "Number of Employees" section, you are required to furnish detailed information about the composition of your workforce, categorized into "Local" and "Migrant" employees. For each category, input the number of male, female, and transgender employees, along with the corresponding totals. This granular breakdown ensures a comprehensive representation of your workforce, contributing to accurate statistical reporting and compliance with regulatory standards. The "Total Value" column consolidates the overall count, offering a holistic view of your entire workforce, inclusive of both local and migrant employees. This data not only aids in regulatory compliance but also provides valuable insights into the diversity and gender distribution within your establishment. Enter the information diligently, as it plays a crucial role in maintaining transparency and adherence to employment regulations.

Name of the day of the week on which the weekly holiday will be observed- In this section, you are required to choose the specific day for the weekly holiday. This applies specifically to shops and commercial establishments. Choose the day from the dropdown menu on which your establishment observes its weekly holiday. Options typically include days of the week such as Sunday, Monday, etc. This selection is crucial for compliance with labor regulations and ensures clarity for both employees and customers regarding the designated weekly off day.
